FARM LOAN ACT
CONSTITUTIONAL,
COURT DECIDESWay Is Clear to Extend Loans to Farm Interests.Congress Has Authority to Exempt Bonds From Tax.

Washington, Feb. 28.—The federal farm loan act was held constitutional today by the supreme court. This is the act under which land banks were established to extend loans to farmers.

Millions of dollars in loans to farmers have been held up pending a decision of the court in this case, which was brought by Charles W. Smith, a stockholder in the Kansas City Title and Trust company, who sought an injunction to restrain that institution from investing its funds in bonds issued by the farm loan banks.

The act was attacked on the ground that connections were without constitutional authority to establish farm loan banks and to exempt their bonds from taxation. Justice Day who wrote the opinion for the court, said the power of connections to establish banks, had in a broad sense, been upheld by the supreme court in the days of Chief Justice Marshall.

The court in sustaining federal court decrees dismissing injunction proceedings brought by Mr. Smith, also held that congress had the authority to exempt the bonds of the bank from taxation.

LOWER COURTS ARE UPHELD IN DECISION

Washington, Feb. 28.—Lower court decrees refusing an injunction to the Detroit United Railway company to restrain the city of Detroit from embarking on the construction of city-owned system of subway railroads were sustained today by the supreme court.

ACCIDENTALLY WOUNDS BROTHER, THEN KILLS HIM TO "PUT HIM OUT OF MISERY."

Pontiac, Mich., Feb. 28.—Warren Branfield, 11 years old, was detained by the police here today, pending investigations into the killing in a woods near Farmington, yesterday of his nine year old brother, Clare. The older boy shot and killed his brother "to put him out of his misery," he said, after having accidentally wounded him while demonstrating his skill with a revolver.

According to Warren's statement to the sheriff, he fired the first shot in an effort to see how close he could come to his brother without hitting him. The younger lad turned at the shot and was hit in the side. Warren then placed the muzzle against the prostrated child's head and pulled the trigger, killing him instantly.

"I wanted to put him out of his misery; I didn't want to see him suffer," he said today.

FIRING SQUAD ENDS LIVES OF
SIX IRISHMEN

Appeal For Clemency Is Rejected By British Government.

Prisoners Executed Two at a Time at Cork Prison.

Cork, Ireland, Feb. 28.—Despite the appeal for clemency made recently by the Cork corporation, the six Irishmen in jail here, whose death was fixed for today on charges of levying war against the crown forces, were duly executed by the military this morning. The men were shot in batches of two each at intervals of 15 minutes.

The men executed were: Timothy McCarthy, Thomas O'Brien, Patrick Mahoney, John Lyons, Daniel Callaghan and John Allen.

The first five were condemned for an attack upon the crown forces of Drisprey, county Cork, in January. Allen, whose home was in Tipperary, was sentenced for possessing a revolver and ammunition. It was his sentence which the king's bench confirmed on February 23 in deciding that a state of war existed in Ireland, giving the military full power to act without interference by the civil court.

The clemency appeal was adopted by the corporation Saturday and a copy sent to General Sir Neil MacReady commander of the troops in Ireland.

In all the Catholic churches in Cork yesterday, prayers were said for the condemned men.

It is believed that Root will be the man selected by Harding to go abroad to present his views to European diplomats.

CAN'T TAX LIQUOR
TAKEN FROM STORAGE

Washington, Feb. 28.—Kentucky laws levying a special tax on liquors withdrawn from bonded warehouses were held invalid today by the supreme court. Several millions of dollars in taxes already collected by the state were involved.

The court sustained lower courts which had granted an injunction to the Kentucky distillers and warehouse company and the J. and A. Freilberg company, preventing interference by the state authorities to withdraws of liquor on which the tax had been paid.

The supreme court upheld decrees of the federal district court for the eastern Kentucky district that the law which the taxes were collected violated both the state and federal constitutions.

The state argued that there was no competition in the liquor business now and that the tax therefore could not be considered confiscatory.

The opinion of the supreme court, which was unanimous, was read by Justice Brandeis.

Warning of Impending Crash Given By Glaring Headlight of Approaching Train—Not One In Two Coaches Escaped Death or Injury.

Porter, Ind., Feb. 28.—The death list of last night's wreck here was today fixed by H. O. Seipel, coroner of Porter county at 42. The morgue at Chesterton contained 36 bodies, some of them fragmentary, four were still under the wreckage 15 hours after the accident, and two were at the hospital in Michigan City. Only fourteen had been positively identified by relatives or friends.

The forty-two bodies had been collected early this forenoon from the wreck. It was a diamond shaped crossing, permitting the New York train, which struck as the other sprawled, derailed across the intersection to rake two Michigan Central cars, instead of cutting them, at right angles.

The Michigan Central train had missed block signals said to be set against it, and had been derailed by a derail, that officials said was automatically set against it along with the signals. It plunged ahead on the ties until it came to rest across the New York Central right of way, with two day coaches at the point of intersection.

SIMPLE CEREMONY FOR INAUGURATION OF NEW PRESIDENT

No Inaugural Parade or Ball Will Mark Induction of Harding.

Previous Events Are Reviewed By Washington Writer.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Inauguration of President-elect Harding will mark the first swing of ceremonies toward simplicity since Thomas Jefferson took up Capitol Hill about 121 years ago.

The ceremony of administering the oath will be as it was prescribed by George Washington. There will be no change in its simplicity, but Mr. Harding by his own decision will enter upon his great task without the pomp and parade that have increasingly surrounded that solemn moment as the years went by. Not even the salutes of artillery that heralded the dawn of Jefferson's inauguration day will wake the sleeping echoes along the Potomac next Friday.

Gone, too, will be the inaugural parade, time honored since regular and militia troops blazed the historic route up Pennsylvania avenue to "The President's House" when President Madison rode in state to take up the duties laid down by Jefferson. Weather alone has prevented or hindered this national spectacle in the years that followed.

Gone also the decorated floats and the soldiers from many states which accompanied President William Henry Harrison as he rode his horse to the capital to take the oath. Gone the triumphal ranks of cabinet officers and clergy and professors and students of Georgetown university which made the historic journey with Polk; gone the military splendor of the pageants that marked the elevation to high office of spidery Zachary Taylor and U. S. Grant.

Among things of the more recent past NOT to be revived for Mr. Harding will be the gray and white clad lines of West Point cadets, stepping proudly and with perfect unison up the great avenue. Inauguration has been for these future leaders of the army and for their brothers of the midshipmen corps from Annapolis, a great public day, and the nation has lavished well deserved plaudits on their appearance.

When Polk rode to his inauguration, a "kid glove" troop of young Virginians, the Fairfax cavalry, clattered before him as special escort. It was the first time a military organization had been specially distinguished in such fashion, but at times thereafter incoming presidents have paid and received compliments of the kind which will be lacking at Mr. Harding's inauguration. President Benjamin Harrison rose at the head of his old regiment, the Seventh Indiana volunteer infantry. President McKinley was escorted by Troop A of Cleveland's Black Horse.

Great with problems as may be the four years ahead of Mr. Harding as he turns to the work he has himself said will be calling a grim teneness that has hung over the inauguration of some of his predecessors will be lacking.

Madison was to see Washington in enemy hands and the president's house, fired by British, the drumming of the British in full war gear, called to guard the capital in the brewing storm of civil war was in Lincoln's ears as he pledged his faith, his very life, to the task. Yet Douglas, his defeated rival, stood at his side and held because Lincoln bent his long figure to seal his oath with his lips upon the Bible.

Four years later, again called to high service, Lincoln saw the wreck and ruin of war spreading far to the south beyond the Potomac; he saw maimed men were growing in hospitals hard by where he stood to take his oath and ahead lay bitter days of reconstruction.

President Hayes was twice sworn in. March 4 was a Sunday that year. The election decision had left a ranking of being it for one electoral vote had defeated Tilden. On March 3, privately the oath was first administered to President Hayes to be repeated in public March 5.

When Andrew Wilson rode down Pennsylvania avenue and back again at his second inauguration in 1917, American entry into the World War was at hand. The last remnants of the Court of Honor before the White House erected for inauguration had NOT disappeared before the nation was aflame with war business.

There have been other inaugurations over which even a darker cloud hovered. Andrew Jackson took office in 1829, soon after the death of his wife which curtailed inauguration ceremonies, and five times vice presidents have been called to the presidency through death of the president, three times by assassination. In each case the president took up his duties without formal ceremony other than the private administration of his oath of office. Tyler, at his home in Washington, Fillmore at the capitol, Johnson in the office of the president, Arthur at his home in New York City and Roosevelt in Buffalo thus took up the presidency.

Curious tales, many now almost legendary and some of them tinged with bitterness of partisan feeling of their day, have drifted down the years from inauguration periods long gone by. Much has been written and said of the "Jefferson simplicity" of the third president; yet not all of it appears to be well founded on fact. It has been often repeated that Jefferson rode his horse to his inauguration, hitching the animal to a fence near the capitol while he went to take the oath. Investigation by historians appears to have established, however, that it was an incident eight years later when Jefferson surrendered office to Madison, from which this account sprang. He did ride to see his successor installed, leaving his horse at a hitching post meanwhile, then set off for his Virginia home in Monticello.

It also appears that Jefferson had planned a more elaborate inauguration ceremony than actually was held. He was escorted into the city by a troop of cavalry the day before taking lodgings at "Columbia" on the corner of Jersey avenue, two hundred steps from the capitol where he was to take the oath. A coach and four was enroute from his home to carry him to the steps of the capitol next day, but failure of the "Columbia" to get through with Mr. Jefferson afoot and he walked with friends from his lodging next day to his inauguration.

Jefferson was NOT accompanied by his predecessor, John Adams. In protest against this action of the house in settling a tie by election of Jefferson, President Adams left the city at day-break inauguration day.

President Monroe was the first executive to take the oath of office on the east portico of the capitol. A controversy as to whether the senate or house chamber should witness the proceedings was settled by this decision to beg the issue, and President Harding, weather permitting, will take his oath in the same place. Otherwise, he will be conducted to the senate chamber for the house will not be in session.

Aside from Jefferson's coach and four, which failed to arrive for his inauguration, several presidents have used conveyances in riding to the capitol. Jackson rode to the ceremony in a four-horse phaeton fashioned from the timbers of the old frigate Constitution and with a picture of ship under full sail painted on the panels. "Altogether it would be a very creditable turnout for Long Acre," said one contemporary writer. The phaeton was also used at Van Buren's inauguration to succeed Jackson, though the same writer notes that during his incumbency Jackson drove much behind "a high-stepping, bony old iron-gray steed," attached to a sulky presented by "some eccentric mechanic," which was made entirely out of "rough-cut hickory with the bark on," and had "very much the look of Old Hickory himself."

General Harrison, though he rode his horse to the capitol, returned to the White House in a coach presented to him by "the Whigs of Baltimore."

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pinkish, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days—you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets get at the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

FRANCE'S COAL OUTPUT

60 PER CENT NORMAL

Official statistics just issued disclose that the 1920 production of coal, including lignite, in France amounted to 25,276,304 tons, or 2,800,000 tons in excess of the tonnage mined during the year 1919. Detailed figures received by the foreign information department of the Bankers Trust company, New York, show that December output, 2,444,221 tons, led the monthly production during the year. This was more than double the output for the low month, May, during which labor disputes kept the tonnage down to 1,022,144 tons.

The Douai district produced the greatest amount of coal in December.

The December total for the mines of the north and the pas-de-Calais was 1,029,308 tons and for the Sarre basin, 873,224 tons.

In 1913 France's coal and lignite production amounted to 40,844,218 tons.

In coffee-growing countries a suggestion of the leaves of the plant is held by many to be superior to that made from berries.

BASIS OF TRADE.

When a drop in price level occurs, business men divide themselves into two classes. First, those who try to sell on the basis of what the goods cost them. Second, those who sell on the basis of what it would cost to replace the goods. The first class may work off apart of their stock at high prices, but they will use a lot of money.

The second class is the one that stands a far better chance of working up a big business at a profit on the new level.

The decline in wholesale prices has been so sharp that some dealers could not come off suddenly without threatening their own solvency. Perhaps such ones took the only possible course.

Newark has plenty of dealers who followed the second plan. They have been moving goods rapidly in this trying period by enterprising advertising, and now are ready with fresh stocks on the present market level.

CHILDREN'S ACCIDENTS.

Twenty thousand children are killed each year by accidents, according to figures given out by the American Red Cross. The country may spend its millions to fight disease. And then 20,000 of these little ones, in their heedless inexperience of life, throw themselves in the way of automobiles, fall out of windows, and in other ways bring sudden and devastating grief.

Some of these tragic fatalities could be avoided by enforcement of laws and growing sense of decency. The motorist who tears through a thickly settled street and considers heedless children are guilty of their own destruction, has elements of murder in his heart. Children have a love for dangerous places. They climb to the top of a tall tree and enjoy scaring their frightened parents. A mild application of the rod when they get too risky, would avert some perilous stunts.

A 40TH ANNIVERSARY.

The Christian Endeavor movement recently celebrated its 40th anniversary. It would be hard to find any organization that has had an equal growth. It began with a little group of young folks gathered at the parsonage parlor of Rev. D. H. Clark's home at Portland, Me., to find ways by which they could help in church work. Now it has 20,000,000 members.

In old days the young folks were supposed to attend all doings of the older crowd and like all the things they liked. But you can't always hitch up a young colt with an aged Dobbin. Young people have a human desire to manage their own enterprises, and accomplish more if given responsibility for doing things of their own. The Christian Endeavor movement has interested millions of them in Christian and civic work, and has given tangible support to numerous noble causes.

GERMANY AND THE WAR.

(Philadelphia Record)

Bernstorff is undoubtedly correct in saying that in forcing us into the war the Kaiser's government was alone to blame, and that it disregarded his advice. But the government did that in other directions. The German Ambassador to Austria-Hungary got a severe warning under directions of William II. noted on the margin of one of the Ambassador's reports, because he sought after the assassinations in Sarajevo to ally the war feeling in Vienna and preserve peace. The German Ambassador to London was "sent to Coventry" after his return, following the declaration of war, because he had tried to restrain his country from forcing Great Britain into the war. Von Jagow had to resign the office of Minister of Foreign Affairs because he was trying to maintain some respect for public law, and the war party prevented von Bethmann-Hollweg from making peace overtures of a sort that the allies could afford to consider, and finally his resignation. For a long time before the war the General Staff had been directing the Foreign office. The culpability of von Bethmann-Hollweg and von Jagow was that they did not resign rather than yield to the war party. Had they resigned when the purpose of the war party was unmistakable, they would have kept their own conscience clean, and they might have exercised some influence on William II.

XLIII.—The Moonlit Path.

The moon was riding high in the heavens, silvering the waters of the lake with an unearthly radiance as Nancy and Dr. Langwell left the house, following a path that wound over the cliffs above the lake. The sigh of the breeze in the pines, mingling with the lapping of the waters, wove a weird harmony. Somewhere an owl uttered its plaintive cry, and vague rustling shadows moved in the depths of the forest.

Involuntarily Nancy shivered. "Cold?" asked the doctor. She shook her head. "No. It's just the night. The silence shrieks, doesn't it, when one is used to the crush of elevated and the rattle of taxis?"

He turned his head and looked at her speculatively.

"Yes, that is your setting, the metropolitan restaurant life. And yet—you are very charming here in the forest primeval."

"Thank you," murmured Nancy without encouragement.

Her chin was buried deep in her chin-chills. The fur torque was a frame for her fluffy blonde hair, electric with the frost. Her cheeks were glowing and her eyes sparkled.

"Do you know that you are an exceptionally attractive woman?" asked the doctor after a pause.

"I've heard so—several times," was the demure reply.

He flung back his head and laughed. "You don't believe in hiding your light under a bushel, do you?"

"No more than you," she answered serenely.

He regarded her with bent brows as they swung along the crest of the cliff.

"You're rather a dangerous woman, aren't you? Many poor devils are likely to be deceived by that colossal smashing naïveté of yours."

"Why should you worry about your fellowmen? No woman could deceive you, could she?"

"You're jolly well right she couldn't," he returned complacently.

Nancy smiled into her furs.

Turning to look at her—as he was doing more and more frequently—he noted her curving lips.

"I've heard so—several times," was the demure reply.

He flung back his head and laughed. "You don't believe in hiding your light under a bushel, do you?"

Nancy smiled into her furs.

Turning to look at her—as he was doing more and more frequently—he noted her curving lips.

"Why the smile?"

"I was thinking," she said slowly, "how the angels must be weeping at sight of the toboggan that stretches at your feet."

"Meaning that I'm due for an awful jolt?"

She nodded.

"Who is going to deliver it?"

"Edith probably."

He laughed easily.

"You're a poor prognosticator Edith is the best-trained wife in the world."

The smooth complacency of him as he said it made Nancy furious. "How dared he—how dare any man be so sure? What quality is there in love to make a woman so docile and broken?"

"So all men think—until their eyes are opened."

"I stared at her coolly."

"You don't think Edith ever has a thought of anyone but me?"

"Not now," conceded Nancy. "But oh, my dear Doctor, have a care for the future. Edith is a young and very attractive woman. Many men find her desirable. Only this evening Major Desmond said—"

She broke off, biting her lip, as though she had said more than she intended.

"Yes?" he prompted. "Only this evening—what?"

"Nothing. Let's stop being personal. It is wearying. Look at the view from this point. Isn't it glorious?"

She paused on a smooth plateau on the very crest of the cliff. A tiny rustic bridge swung out over the lake below, and she rested her hands on its rough railing and gazed out over the moonlit waters.

The whispering of the pines behind them was the only sound which broke the stillness.

They were in a world apart.

The doctor stretched out his hand suddenly and closed it over Nancy's.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

Loss of human life and destruction of property through fires constitutes one of the most deplorable manifestations of our national lack of thrift. The most serious phase of the situation lies in the fact that more than 15,000 of our fellow-citizens, according to estimates compiled recently by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, were burned to death last year, in which connection it must be remembered with the deepest regret that 92 per cent. of these fires were the result of carelessness or neglect and that 82 per cent. of the dead and injured were mothers and children.

A compilation of fire losses during the five-year period beginning with 1915 shows a loss of $1,400,000,000, hence, if the statement of statisticians regarding the percentage of preventable causes of fires is to be accepted, America may mark off needless property losses of one and a quarter billion dollars as one of our many tributes to carelessness and lack of thrift during the last five years.

The average of fire destruction during the past half decade has been $283,000,000 per year, which means that we burn down at least one out of every ten new buildings we erect.

An average of 889 homes are destroyed by fire on every working day of the year. It is estimated that the value of property wasted through fire during the past five years would have built 283,000 houses at an average cost of $5,000 each and would have been sufficient to supply homes for approximately 1,500,000 people.

If applied to road construction the nation's five year fire loss would have constructed 141,000 miles of macadam roads at $10,000 per mile.

If any foreign agency were causing a similar loss of life and property in the United States, it would mean nothing short of war. The American people would not tolerate for one day such wanton invasion of their personal safety and their possessions.

What is needed is a general awakening of the public conscience on this subject through a process of education on the principles of thrift and efficiency which shall reach all the people of this country down to the last individual.

The daily sacrifice of 40 lives and nearly $1,000,000 is by far too great a tribute to lay at the feet of the fire fiend.

Milady's Boudoir

Natural Complexions.

It is the longing of every woman to have a naturally beautiful complexion, and in the absence of it all sorts of things are done in the attempt to improve its condition and in many cases things are used which work great harm. There are a great many preparations on the market that are beneficial and help to beautify the complexion, but none can give much aid unless the skin is kept clean and the pores open so they can discharge the impurities of the body.

Fresh air, sunshine, good living, temperate eating, are all great aids toward a clear skin, not just of the face, but of the whole body. The entire body should be bathed daily and the face twice a day if not oftener. This cleansing will permit the pores to act freely. Sunshine is good for the skin and so is fresh air. Both, united, have a tendency to give bloom and color to the skin, and if the air and sunshine are taken regularly each day early in the morning.

ing, before the air has lost its freshness, a beautiful tint of beauty will come to the face.

Just as the body needs a drink of water so does the face need its drink. So, fill the bowl full of cold water, close the eyes, hold the breath and immerse the face deep down in the water. Hold it submerged as long as possible. Then raise the head, breathe deeply and again immerse the face. Repeat this six or eight times.

The face should then be gently dried with a soft towel and patted for a few moments. Snow is one of the best things to use on the skin. Fill a piece of cheesecloth with snow, hold the face over a bowl to catch the moisture as it melts and pat the face gently all over with the snow bag. Keep the bag moving, never letting it rest on one spot, for the face muscles must not get too chilled.

Our Boys and Girls

Often, unseen by the mother, a baby crawling about on the floor, picks up and swallows a button or penny or other small objects. When this happens the first thing to do is to give the child plenty of soft food to eat. This is given for the purpose of coating the object swallowed to prevent it from injuring the walls of the bowels.

Oatmeal, farina and other mush, potato, soft bread or a bit of fig, if nothing else is at hand, will do. Do not give castor oil or any kind of a cathartic, because this would rush the article through the bowels and might cause a perforation of the walls. Watch the child's movements carefully until the article has passed out.

If a child gets a button, a pebble or other object up his nose, compress the opposite side of the nose and make the child blow hard. If he cannot do this try to make him sneeze by tickling his nose with a feather.

Everyday Etiquette

"When a girl of 15 is introduced to another girl of her age, what is the correct thing to say?" asked Maud.

"One may say: 'How do you do?' and extend the hand, or merely smile and repeat the other girl's name," said her grandmother.

LISBON WORTH TOURIST VISIT

Picturesque Portuguese Capital Contains Much of Interest to Sightseer.

CITY OF QUEER CONTRASTS

Modern Town Is Crowded With Animated Groups While Old City Is a Quiet Retreat—Garden of Europe Set Beside the Sea.

London.—If, some evening, writes a correspondent of the Times from Lisbon, you should leave Madrid—that luxurious but melancholy city, perched high above a wintry landscape of which the hard, bleak outlines are softened by a mist—and if you should take the little short-winded train that jolts cheerfully, if pantingly, all the way to Lisbon three times a week, you will wake up the next morning in an enchanted land.

You will see a clear, pale blue sky and a fresh, joyous morning light touching forests of cork trees with silver; flocks of red brown goats frisking in and out among the bright red of the stripped tree trunks; a torrent gleaming among white rocks; gaily painted houses covered with flowering rose briars and surrounded by clumps of slender palms, and brilliant green orange trees laden with silver gilt fruit that twinkle like stars. Thus, with all the peaceful splendor of a Virginia landscape, there passes before your eyes formosa Lusitania, "Jardim da Europa a beira mar plantado," as the Portuguese poet Ribeiro called it—garden of Europe set beside the sea.

At every little station, as you draw near the capital, the first-class coaches—there are no thirds—are invaded by peasants wearing short jackets and woollen caps that hang down onto their shoulders, and women with ivory faces framed in bright colored handkerchiefs, all carrying baskets of fruit, cheese or cackling fowls, and girt round with strings of partridges or woodcock. They swarm into the corridors and onto the footboards with a friendly lack of ceremony; questions are asked and jokes exchanged in the soft, somewhat heavy Portuguese language, which has lost the rough qualities of Spanish, and loud, unrestrained laughter fills the air. It is a picturesque, intimate sort of scene, which has the advantage of lasting too short a time to pall.

Lisbon Worth Delay.

If you are on your way to the Portuguese Riviera, Lisbon is well worth a few days' delay. Except that the beds are a trifle hard and that the heating, owing to the coal shortage, leaves something to be desired—but this does not matter much, for the sun shines nearly every day—there are some quite good hotels. They are well run, and even the visitor who is merely passing through is treated as a friend. First, there is the modern town, which lies in the plain at the foot of the seven hills. It begins on the edge of the country with the superb Avenue de la Liberdade, with its eight rows of plane trees and palms. This thoroughfare extends majestically for half a mile, between villas and fine new houses, right into the heart of the city, the Roça, a wide square overlooked by the hill upon which the rusty red citadel stands.

A dense crowd, differing from northern crowds in that it is composed almost entirely of men, passes up and down the footpaths and on the streets; there are few carriages or motorcars, but plenty of trams, which are more numerous and better run than in any other European capital. Men form groups in the streets and carry on lively discussions—politics mainly. A striking feature of the crowd is the bright animation which shows in the brown faces and the natural eloquence of the gestures. All around are hordes of noisy street urchins selling newspapers and national lottery tickets—mischievous looking boys with black gimlet eyes and merry and impudent laughter.

Women With Fish and Fruit.

Women come up from the harbor carrying, balanced upon their funny little black hats—rather like battered "toppers"—large round baskets filled with fish or golden fruit; oranges, pomegranates and mandarins. Their heads are bound in bright colored handkerchiefs, and as they push through the masculine crowd they look like flowers bursting into bloom in a mown field.

Lisbon has many other pictures to offer. There are the old parts of the city, which are reached by picturesque flights of steps littered with brown-faced children at play and baskets of cakes and flowers tended by women from distant lands. Here you will find narrow crowded streets not unlike certain streets in Naples, lined with tall houses strung with garlands of gayly colored washing.

And there are deserted squares where, through the half open gateways of the houses, you may catch glimpses of mysterious gardens that turn your thoughts to the Arabian Nights. Further still you come upon some old Portuguese palaces, with outlandish red fronts and big thickly barred windows, which look as though they could tell many a strange story of love and death.

On the very top of the hills lie Lisbon's fine parks, Sao Pedro d'Alcantara and the Botanical Gardens, with their avenues of enormous palms and their woods where northern oaks and huge tropical cactuses grow side by side. There are wonderfully bright emerald lawns and pink cascades of bougainvillea mirrored in motionless pools of water, and high warm terraces looking out over vast stretches of reddish roofs descending in tiers down to the sea.

But the best part of all, perhaps, is the port, one of the oldest in the world. As your glance sweeps over the innumerable docks and the miles of quays you receive the impression of a great medley of funnels and masts, long gray warships, blunt, powerful tramps from every corner of the world, and the daintier lines of sailing vessels. Blue or vivid yellow fishing boats, with bulging red sails, come in from the sea with their catch; their prows are boldly curved back like those of the Venetian gondolas, and they recall the graceful lines of the old-time caravels which used to set out from Lisbon to conquer the world.

FRENCH JUDGES ASK BOOST

Want Salary at Least as High as Telegraph Operators or Warehouse Watchmen.

Paris.—Judges of many of the French courts, including some of the higher tribunals, are hinting that they would like to have their pay raised at least to the equivalent of telegraph operators, warehouse watchmen and junior army officers. Their friends point out that the salaries of many of the magistrates are less than those of even ordinary skilled workmen.

The newspapers have taken up the campaign in their behalf and are urging that they be granted allowances to enable them to live at least decently. Some of the judges have told publicly that their colleagues without private incomes have to sell their personal property accumulated in better days or do clerical work at home to eke out a living.

French judges are paid from 500 francs a month, now equivalent to about $33, up to $33 francs, now equivalent to about $58, for the presiding judge of the higher tribunals.

Bulldog Hatched Out Brood of Chickens

George Patino of Niles O., has a bulldog which has forsaken all the hereditary belligerency usually associated with one of its breed and has taken over the duties of a hen. It has mastered everything save the chuck, according to Patino. The dog hatched out the brood of chickens after the hen had deserted the nest.

"I found the dog sitting on the abandoned nest," Patino said. "When I tried to pull him away he growled and snapped at me. The chickens, when hatched, immediately took a liking to their foster parent, who dug worms for them, and in general has taken as good care of them as a mother hen."

HER LEGS ARE NOW STRAIGHT

Once Bowed, Ruth Gordon, Pretty Chicago Actress, Had Them Broken.

Chicago.—When the plaster casts were removed from the erstwhile bow legs of Ruth Gordon, an actress, who had each leg broken in two places so they could be straightened, Dr. Edwin Ryerson pronounced them "perfectly straight."

It will be a few weeks more before she can leave her wheel chair, Doctor Ryerson said today, but Miss Gordon smiled happily at the doctor's verdict. Six weeks ago she won Doctor Ryerson's consent to perform the operation, not because of vanity, she said, but because her legs compelled her to wear long dresses on the stage and prevented her from rising in her profession.

AL JENNINGS HOLDUP VICTIM

Reformed Train Robber Finds Self at Unfamiliar End of "Six-Gun."

New York.—Al Jennings, reformed train robber and bandit, admitted today he had been victimized here by "an inconsiderate, discourteous" member of his forsaken profession. Returning to his hotel from Brooklyn, Jennings was accosted by a shabby individual and found himself at the unfamiliar end of a "six-gun." He obeyed with celerity the usual "Hands up!" command, then sought immunity by divulging his identity.

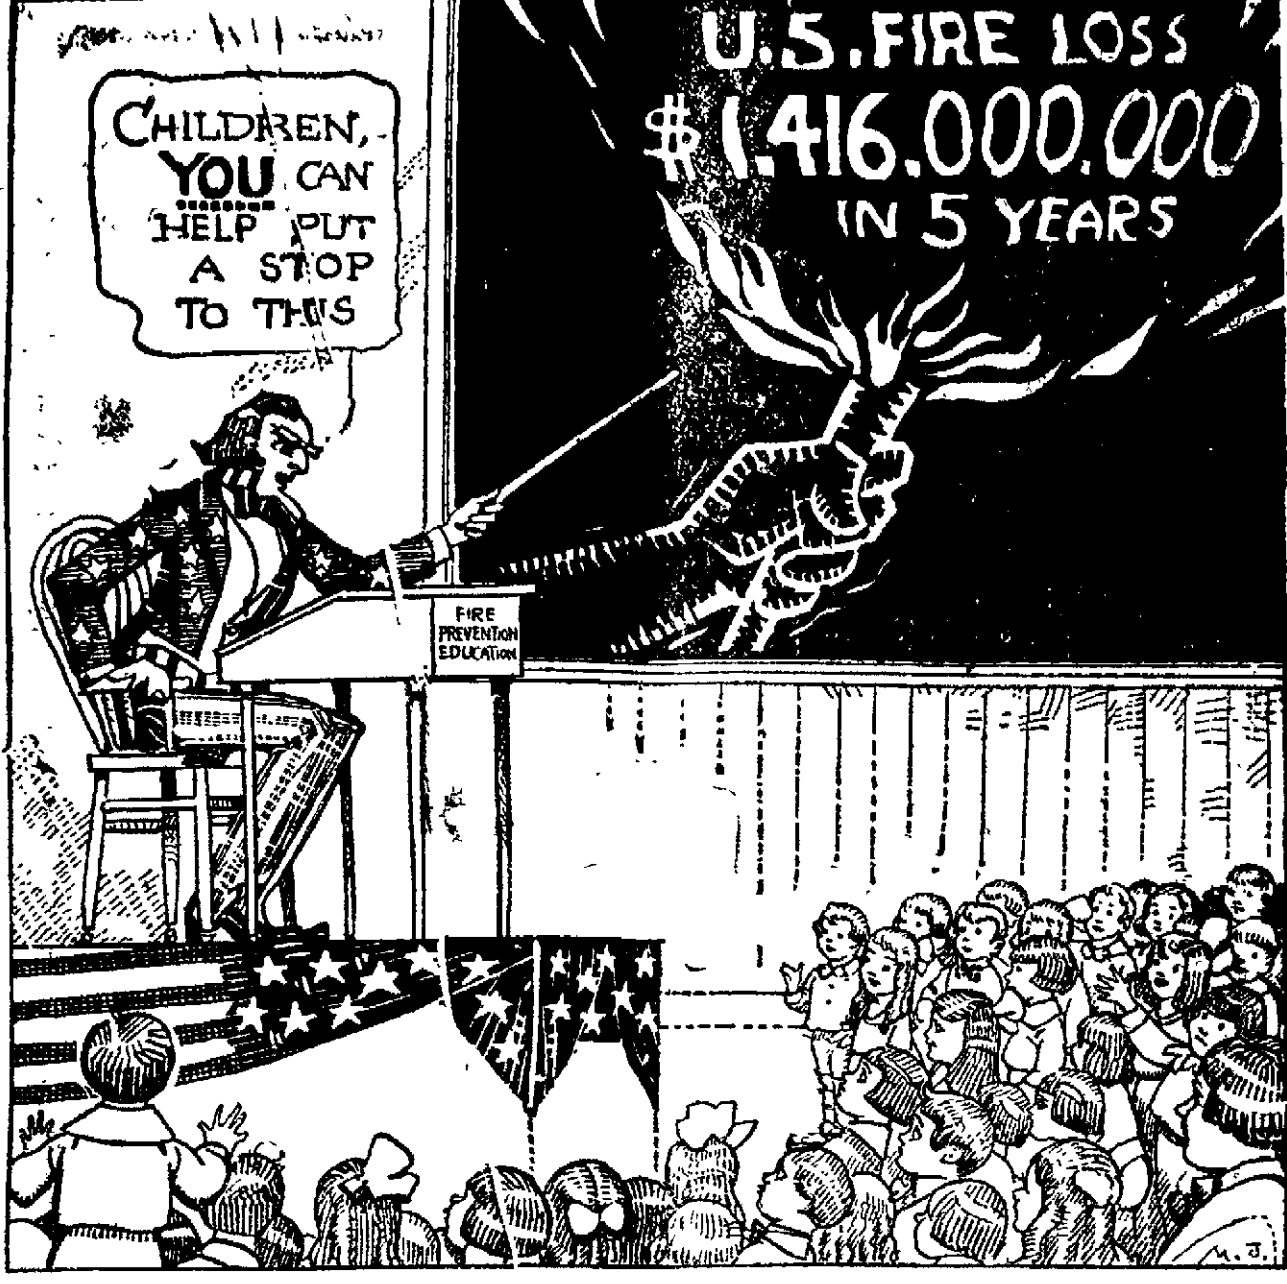

"O, come on now," he pleaded in a friendly manner. "I'm Al Jennings." "Never mind the gun," returned the other, lifting a jewel and a roll of bills from Jennings' pocket. "I'm President Wilson."

"There now, I'm leaving you a dime—beat it!" Jennings did.

555 Pound Frenchman Dies. Bourges.—Pierre Guindole, reputed to be the heaviest man in France, tipping the scales at 555 pounds, has just died here. He was twenty-eight years old.

State Asked to Help Stop This Waste

TO young America, the school boys and girls of the United States, Federal and State Government officials and business men everywhere have turned in the hope that the country's enormous losses by fires, amounting in the past five years to $1,416,000,000, may be greatly reduced if not almost entirely eliminated.

Following the example of New Jersey, where a law has just gone into effect prescribing instruction in the causes of fires and their prevention, as a part of public school work, the legislature of this State and those of most of the other States of the Union are expected to pass this year a bill providing for such instruction in the schools.

Under the leadership of the National Association of Credit Men and its affiliated State organizations the Federal Government, through the United States Bureau of Education and the United States Forest Service, is cooperating with the National Fire Protection Association, the Fire Marshals' Association, the Fire Underwriters and other organizations in a movement for the adoption of State laws, like that in New Jersey, requiring public school instruction for at least an hour a month, in fire causes and prevention.

"The proposed law is so simple and attacks the problem before us so directly," says J. H. Tregea, secretary-treasurer of the Credit Men's Association, "that the measure should meet no opposition in any State."

It is hoped that as the result of this instruction the next generation will hate fire waste and the carelessness that causes it. In teaching fire prevention in the schools it is planned to strike at the root of the national evil by beginning with instruction of the children.

"If each of the school children in the United States would learn how to prevent fire and would form habits of carefulness and consideration, it would go far in saving lives and property," says Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, of this movement. He has written to the educational departments of this and the other States urging them to cooperate in having the fire prevention education bills enacted at the present sessions.

CLEVELAND WRITER PRAISES WARFIELD
 Harlowe Hoyt, writer for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, has the following to say of David Warfield, who in "The Return of Peter Grimm" opened the new million dollar theater "The Ohio" at Cleveland last week. Warfield comes to the Auditorium here on Thursday evening, March 3rd. Already there is a large mail order advance sale, but still there are many choice seats left. In part Mr. Hoyt says:
 On the occasion of its first presentation I viewed the production "Peter." Technically, it is by far the stock broker. It is said that his career is pictured in this production is typical of several cases well known on the stock exchange. His battle to win Alice Houghton, daughter of a veteran fellow broker who has been made a financial pauper by the clever manipulation of the stock market by a rejected suitor, is the theme of the story.

SEATS ON SALE FOR WARFIELD TOMORROW
 At the Auditorium theater Thursday, March 3, David Warfield and his supporting company, under the direction of David Belasco, will be seen in "The Return of Peter Grimm."
 Patrons of the theater need not go far back in their memories of the stage to recall the exquisite drama of Mr. Belasco's, since it is less than ten years ago that it was first produced, and welcomed as one of the finest, truest and most artistic plays ever put forth by an American dramatist. Many critics, indeed, held it to be superior to any contemporary work on the European stage. Its theme, at the time of its first production, was somewhat in advance of the thought of all save a minor part of the playing public, but since that time the theme of "The Return of Peter Grimm" has become a subject of world-wide study, discussion and conjecture. For the season, the revival of the play is arousing tenfold the interest that it did when it was first played. It may truthfully be said that "The Return of Peter Grimm" is the most timely play now being presented

R. J. C.—The best way for you to get into the movies, as long as you want my advice about it, is to go to the nearest moving picture theater, buy a ticket, find a vacant seat and sit down. And let it go at that. It will save you the railroad fare and probably a few foodless days. I'd say take the next train to Los Angeles, but I've seen too many boys like you with no experience hang around till their money was all gone and then, scared to death, try to work their way back home. Los Angeles is overflowing with pilgrims from all over the world, and the man who will succeed in the movies is one in a thousand. It takes screen personality and years and years of hard work and perseverance. My own experience of getting in, as long as you want that, too, isn't something that everyone would want to use as a model.

I got in hanging on the end of a pick as a laborer. One day as I was critically opening up Mother Earth near one of the studios, a director noticed that my hands, not being used to the pick, were in bad shape. He promised to get me something to do in the movies, and, at last, after further acquaintance with the pick, I got a job in the mob scenes at ten dollars a week.

After I had worked at that long enough to get over the shock of such sudden wealth, it happened one day the strike leader they had chosen for a scene wasn't getting over. The same director sent for me and gave me the chance to try it. By the time I finished with that mob I had them chewing up their lunch baskets and throwing them at each other. After that, I thought being Douglas Fairbanks' rival was a matter of a mere week or so, but that wasn't the story at all.

For three years I was a stunt man, turning horses over in the foreground, swimming rivers and jumping off cliffs with them being pushed off the walls of Babylon and such like harmless pursuits. Babylon, by the way, was an unlucky town for me. Constance Talmadge, with ten thousand square feet of empty space to shoot into, had to land her arrow in my throat, and shortly after, a fire machine that refused to work till I stood over it suddenly took a notion to spurt forth forty feet of flame and make me look like Diabolo, the flying comet.

Three years did not bring me as near hurting Douglas Fairbanks' reputation as I thought three weeks would, but finally I got leave the mob and get to playing heavies. That wasn't what you might call an easy life. I was beat up, picture after picture, and as I would lie there with my ribs kicked in, I had the consolation of knowing the audience was saying to the hero: "Fine! Why didn't you do it sooner?"

I'm a hero at last, but it doesn't mean the rough stuff is left far behind. In the next Cecil B. DeMille picture, "Something to Think About," I have the pleasant experience of being one of a pioneer gang at work under water in a tunnel. I try to stop a leak but when the thing bursts, the others leave me to it. Ten thousand gallons of water were turned loose on me in that tunnel, and I was battered every which way before I managed to grab a ring on the door and pull myself up. I had to stay there till the water slowly closed above my head, and in all the things I've done, I've never felt so sure my last hour had come.

My next picture, "The Kentuckians," is comparatively peaceful—only three fights and a duel, so I'm looking forward to a good rest.

All things considered, though I don't want to discourage you at all if you want to get into the movies this bad, for an easy life, I'd say stay away from Los Angeles.

 At present there is a million and a half barrels more apples in storage than a year ago, according to official figures.
 The best of barrelled stock is being quoted at wholesale for $4 a barrel. In view of this situation, it is held that consumers are justified in using more apples.
 In an ideal diet, says Dean Alfred Vivian of the College of Agriculture, as much should be expended for fruits and vegetables together as for bread and cereals, and more than is spent for meat, butter and other fats. The only article of diet for which one is justified in spending more is milk.
 Apples supply necessary minerals, aid in preventing acidosis, scurvy, and constipation, improve the sanitary condition of the bowels, and promote the growth of children. It has been demonstrated that the antiscorbutic vitamin contained in apples is an essential for normal growth.

cleverest piece of stagecraft which Belasco ever has evolved. I know there are some who will not agree with me in this, but a synopsis of the story and a brief resume of some of the scenes may make my point more clearly.

Grimm, you know, is an old horticulturist of Holland descent, kindly, opinionated, ruling his little household like a king. Conditions within it are at sixes-and-sevens, though he doesn't know it, and he arranges for his ward to marry his nephew. Then Grimm dies. He comes back in the spirit, and for the remainder of the play attempts to rectify the mistake which he made in life and which, seeing with a clearer vision from the beyond, he understands and would correct.

Belasco, in working out his play, has evolved a double plot. Grimm comes back; unseen and unheard, he exerts his influence at every available opportunity; and, in the end, this influence, if you accept it, accomplishes what he would do. But, at the same time, running simultaneously with his motive, is the development of the plot through the actions of the living players. They, in turn, work out the same solution—quite independent of Peter—and bring about the happy ending.

In the opening act, wherein Peter is disclosed in the flesh, much of the action takes place about a large table in the living room of his home. Peter predominates these scenes. Various propositions, later developed, are given their inception. Their solution, in the later acts, are worked out with the players occupying exactly the same positions, except, of course, Peter has come to accept an entirely different view of the situation.

Then, there is the problem of Peter, in the spirit, walking through the story, speaking, acting, but never seen. None knows that he is present, except the sickly little lad who, in his illness develops psychic powers. The dialogue of the players, with that of Peter detected, makes a play in itself. Their actions are natural, their passage from one side of the stage to the other is quite in the ordinary course of events, and sandwiched in between this, are the lines which the spirit of Grimm must speak and the positions which he must occupy.

 George Walsh, starring in the Wm. Fox production, "The Plunger," which tells a vivid and romantic story of Wall Street, will be the attraction at the Alhambra theater for these days beginning Monday. The picture, from an original story by Thomas F. Fallon, was made under the direction of Dell Henderson. It has a most capable supporting cast and is lavish in production. Virginia Valli, often described as the girl with the perfect profile, plays opposite the star.
 "The Plunger" concerns the adventures of "Take a Chance" Schuyler, an erstwhile office boy turned millionaire

 Tells Girls How She Found Relief From Pain

West Palm Beach, Fla.—"When I was 19 years old I was irregular and I had such terrible cramps it felt like a knife going through me. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I was cured. After I was married I had the same trouble caused by the added work of farming and heavy washings so I told my husband to get six bottles of the Vegetable Compound and by taking it regularly my troubles ceased and now I never have a pain or ache, and am regular. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think every young girl should take it. You can publish this letter and it may be the means of helping some other girl or woman."
 —Mrs. MARY M. WAGNER, Box 759, West Palm Beach, Florida.

While no woman is entirely free from periodic suffering it does not seem to be the plan of nature that woman should suffer so severely and when pain exists something is wrong which should be set right. Every girl who suffers from monthly cramps should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

LOST WATCH RETURNED TO
R. L. Williams, Hudson avenue druggist lost his gold watch last week.
He placed a small classified advertisement in The Advocate Saturday, and the watch was returned to the owner. This is only one of the many instances, where a mere classified advertisement in the Advocate has restored valuable articles to their owners. It proves that it pays to use the classified columns of the Advocate when you have something, want lost, have something to sell or want to buy some special article or Real Estate.
You get results and the cost is small.

Do Not Overlook This!

thopedist who is opening an office on E. Main street opposite interurban station, March 1st, is offering a new and titles holder to ONE regular treatment EVERY thirty days, also supplementary treatments at special rates. Membership card is date stamped at each visit to office and that keeps tab on when member is due for another treatment.

As this is an experiment we are going to hold this "Clinic" open to membership for a LIMITED TIME, and if you wish to enter same, come in and buy your card.
If you have had a treatment recently or wish to wait a couple of weeks for same, come and join NOW, and you can take your first treatment within thirty days.

If Your Blood Is Weak and Clogged With Poisons, Pepto-Mangan Will Strengthen and Purify It

When you get over-tired day after day, your system has got rid of so much waste it can't create new energy fast enough. The result is that your blood is filled with waste matter. It becomes clogged. You are trying to get around with a lot of poison in your system.
You look bad, you feel poorly. You get out of patience easily. Ambition is lost. You just don't care about anything.
That is no way to live. Your blood needs help for time. It is starved. You will find help in that fine tonic, Pepto-Mangan. Pepto-Mangan purifies the blood and fills it with red corpuscles. In a little while you will have plenty of rich, red blood and you won't know yourself. It isn't a magic medicine. It contains iron and other ingredients that feed starved blood and make it rich and red. Physicians have prescribed Pepto-Mangan for years.
Pepto-Mangan is sold in liquid and tablet form. Take either kind you prefer. One acts the same as the other. Both contain the same ingredients. But be sure to get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—Gude's. The full name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" should be on the package—Advertisement.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING STARTS THE WHEELS
In November, business had a bluish cast. The financial waters were troubled.
Corn and wheat and cotton were tumbling—business was halting and hesitating.
Everywhere you heard the croakers say, "People are not buying."
Then the retailers took the cold plunge. They began to re-adjust prices and offer inducements.
And they advertised the fact—advertised it in the newspapers of their home cities. They kept at it—and kept at it.
After a bit, buying began to wake up—slowly at first, then in greater volume.
Progressive merchants who know newspaper advertising pulls progressively went at it harder.
Business grew better and better, and by the last part of December many merchants were reporting record-breaking sales, and, taking the country as a whole, business was good.
Newspaper advertising saved the day and made it possible for the merchants to clear their shelves and reorder from the manufacturer—thus loosening the clogged stream of commerce and setting the factory wheels in motion.
Newspaper advertising is the greatest single business force on this continent today.

BOLSHEVIKI ARMY TAKES TIFLIS FRIDAY. Constantinople, Monday, Feb. 28.—Bolshevik troops numbering about 25,000 entered Tiflis Friday evening, it is said in a dispatch received here. For two hours on Friday there was considerable looting in the city by local Communists, it is said, but late in the day the Soviet government began to restore order. The Italian and German, and Turkish missions in Tiflis did not leave when the Georgian government fled and are still there.

The anti-Bolshevik government proclaimed in Edivan, capital or Armenia, about two weeks ago has been ousted from control and the Bolsheviks have established a Soviet Republic. Many members of the anti-Bolshevik regime have been imprisoned and the rest are said to be fleeing.

Cotton Seed. Cotton seed was treated as garbage in 1900; by 1910 it was being used as fertilizer; in 1920 its usefulness as food for cattle had been recognized; and in 1920 its potentialities as a table food were being advertised the country over. Now it is one of the most important of the sources of oils, varying from the clearest "olive" to the coarsest paint-oil.

Effect of Habit on Some People. A West Dallas widow says that the only reason why she would ever take another husband is because it is so hard to stop marrying when once begun.

ILLINOIS YOUTH IS NATHAN HALE OF WORLD WAR

Lieut. Oliver Junian Kendall.

When the American Red Cross discovered an unmarked grave behind the lines once held by the Kaiser's forces at Cantigny an investigation was held and the body of an American lieutenant was found. Oliver Junian Kendall is his name. He was connected with the engineering division of the first troops that occupied the front trenches near Cantigny. The Americans had never assumed the offensive and hearing some noise in "no man's land" Kendall volunteered to investigate. He was captured by the Germans and upon his refusal to divulge any information was shot as a spy, the Nathan Hale of the World war.

TAYLOR'S HOUN' DAWG

Governor of Tennessee Will Keep Famous Animal at Home.

Would Veto Proposition for Appropriation to Build Home for "Old Limber" on Mansion Grounds.

Nashville.—Old Limber the only dog whose yelp was ever heard in a political campaign in Tennessee, has not been tempted from his familiar haunts in the Happy valley vicinity by the bright lights of the capital, at which his master, Gov. Alf Taylor, is presiding.

Reports that the Democratic legislature contemplated making an appropriation on the mansion grounds for a house for Old Limber, have led his master to announce that he will promptly veto such a proposition, and keep Old Limber at home.

Old Limber furnished much material for Governor Taylor's speeches during his campaign. The governor always gave a graphic recital of Old Limber's prowess as a fox hunter.

"Old Limber is being well cared for in a good home in east Tennessee and gets three square meals a day," is the last word from the governor on the subject. "He would not be contented in the city. He wants to be where he can occasionally survey the lofty mountains over whose heights he has many times chased the fox with the rest of the pack making music at his heels. Old Limber is nine years old, and is too old to run now, but he remembers and often dreams of his past achievements."

"If you have never heard Old Limber in full cry," the governor continues, growing more eloquent, "you have never heard music. He is gifted in every note, and in a chase, at one time or another, he will let you have all of them. You could distinguish Old Limber's voice from the rest of the pack eight miles away. Honest! That dog never lied to me in his life. He has never been known to yelp on a cold trail. Whenever the voice of Old Limber is heard, everybody knows that there is a fox around."

The governor's east Tennessee home place boasts not only "Old Limber," the most famous hound dog in Tennessee, but also a son, who has taken his place as pack leader, and a grandson as well.

LIZARDS MAKE AUTOS SKID
Plague Afflicting Towns and Villages Which Border on Prairie Lakes of Canada.

Winnipeg, Man.—A plague of lizards is afflicting the towns and villages which border on the prairie lakes and sloughs of Canada. At Nipette 2,000 lizards were shovelled out of the basement window shaft at the government sanatorium. In the doctor's quarters 60 were counted.

Motorcar drivers have to keep skid chains on their cars, as the roads are made slippery by a surface of living lizards. Many of the people keep indoors rather than venture out because of the disagreeable sensation of crunching a lizard underfoot. The lizard is more treacherous than banana peel.

The little reptiles, which vary from four inches to eighteen inches in length, travel by night only, and are now on their annual trek from the lakes to find suitable crevices in which to hibernate.

Father Sells Girl for 10 Cents a Pound, She Says

Lexington, Ky.—A report from Stanford, Lincoln county, says that George Isaman, a farmer of the mountain section, has been placed in jail at Stanford on a charge made by his daughter, Annie, eighteen, that her father had attempted to shoot her. The girl charges her father sold her at 10 cents a pound, a total of $15, to Joseph Zubra. When he came to the home some weeks later to claim his purchase, the father was greatly displeased at the girl's refusal to carry out the terms of the sale and tried to shoot her. Isaman and his family are highly respected in their rural community, it is said. The girl is pretty and well educated.

NEW WARSHIP IN JAP FLEET

"Nagato" Takes Place Among Largest Fighting Vessels Afloat in the World Today.

Tokyo.—Japan's latest battleship, Nagato, has a dead-weight tonnage of 33,800 and can develop a speed of 23 knots per hour.

Its length is 660 feet. The armament of the new addition to the Japanese fleet includes eight 15-inch guns and twenty 6-inch guns. It is fitted with four turbine engines. The Nagato takes a place among the largest battleships afloat today, its 33,800 tons comparing with the British Hood, 41,000 tons, and the American Tennessee, 32,000 tons.

BEAUTY DOCTORS WILL STAGE SHOW

Will Show Mildly Truth of Statement That Beauty
Is Only Skin Deep.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—An educational beauty show, said to be the first of its kind and size to be held outside of Paris, will be staged here the week beginning February 28. The exhibition will be largely for the purpose of proving to mildly of 1921 the truth of the statement that beauty is only skin deep and that all women may be beautiful.

The show is being sponsored by nearly 500 manufacturers of practical aids to beauty, but one of its announced purposes will be to agitate against the excessive use of cosmetics and to demonstrate benefits which may be obtained from the proper use of the proper kinds of beauty aids.

There will be dozens of experts to instruct the women. Women artists, psychologists, health and dietetic specialists and beauty experts will assist at the exposition, all with the same object in view, that of helping American women develop the beauty they have and to become more beautiful.

According to the promoters of the show, there is a perfume of a certain scent which blends with a certain personality, and one of the objects of the show will be to have the experts and each woman in deciding what particular perfume or powder is best suited to her individuality. Another expert will demonstrate the proper manner in which to apply the different articles of the toilette.

In explaining the purpose of educating American women in the development of beauty at the show, W. G. Hamilton, director, said:

"American women are the most naturally beautiful in the world. There is only one thing they may be said to lack in comparison with the women of other countries and that is the art of accentuating and refining their loveliness. There is at present a tendency on the part of women toward overdressing, overgrooming, and too startling adornment. Such a tendency, as well as the tendency toward dowdiness, can be corrected only through widespread educational propaganda among our women."

Invitations have been issued to cities throughout the country to send their most beautiful women and girls.

There will be a beauty contest for high school girls and other contests to determine the possessor of the most beautiful hair, eyes, complexion, perfect figure, the best kept hands and the prettiest foot and ankle.

Clothes will not play an important part in the show except insofar as the experts will contrast the proper and improper manner of dressing and the relation of bodily health and beauty.

AUTO BLOCK SYSTEM

the tower at the crossing showed that the New York Central train hit the automatic tower bell signal station, three miles back from the crossing on the line, just as seconds ahead of the Michigan Central train, thus giving the New York Central train the right of way.

The derail on the tracks at the crossing is automatically set when the block signal is set against a train at the block tower two miles back from the crossing, they said. The derail on the Michigan Central tracks threw that train off the rails, 600 feet from the intersection, although the engine and coaches bumped along the ties over the intersection, and the wheels of the Michigan Central engine went back on the rails, where they struck the New York Central crossover.

A statement by Towerman J. C. Cook, on duty at the crossing, declared the block two miles away was set against the Michigan Central train while the track was left clear for the New York Central. Railroad officials at the scene of the wreck said Engineer W. F. Long, of Jackson, Michigan, who escaped unhurt, declared he had received a clear signal and had checked it with his fireman. He left early today for his home.

When the Michigan Central train struck the derail 600 feet from the crossing, it was the first indication he had of the impending crash, Long is said to have stated.

From that point the eight coaches of the Michigan Central train bumped along the tie, coming to a standstill with the third and fourth coaches at the intersection of the tracks, and an instant later the New York Central train burst through.

All except the two baggage and mail cars of the New York Central train remained upright, although bits of the wooden coaches of the Michigan Central train were scattered for 50 yards. Passengers in the four coaches of the Michigan Central train behind the death cars were unhurt except for the shrapnel, and all of the passengers of the New York Central escaped, climbing down from their cars through the wreckage.

Most of the identified dead and the seriously injured are from Indiana and southwestern Michigan.

For no reason that railroad officials could assign, almost all of the dead taken to the little morgue at Chesterton across the tracks from Porter received their fatal wounds in the head. Some were decapitated accounting for the failure to identify nine of the 25 which had been taken there up to six o'clock.

The first group of those critically injured were rushed in an ambulance to Michigan City, Indiana, and two of them died on the way. Railroad officials expressed the belief early today that all of the injured would recover. Hospitals and private homes at Michigan City and Gary received the injured.

Preliminary investigation and the handling of the identifications at the Chesterton morgue were taken over early today by Coroner Seipel of Valparaiso, Indiana, assisted by Division Superintendents McKee Wright and Markey of the Michigan Central.

Records of the Michigan Central train disclose a large number of railroad employees, travelling on passes, scheduled to go on the wrecked train, but they could not be located in the Chesterton morgue.

Groups of volunteer doctors and nurses from Michigan City and Gary to rush the injured to hospitals led to confusion in the check of railroad officials upon the list of casualties but it was believed the total would not exceed 35.

The speed of the New York Central train, which was 40 miles an hour in the two death cars, saved the passengers in the rear coaches of both trains from worse than a severe jolting.

Bodies of Engineer Claude Johnson of Elkhart Indiana and Fireman George Belmont of Elkhart, engine crew on the New York Central train were recovered early today from beneath the tangled mass of iron to which their engine was reduced by the impact.

Engineer W. F. Long, of Jackson, Michigan and Fireman George Block of the Michigan Central train of Michigan

City, Indiana were able to save themselves, their engine being far beyond the point of the collision.

"I was not to blame," Towerman Cook told an Associated Press representative at his home in Chesterton early today. "I threw the distant block against the Michigan Central train. I threw the block two miles back from the crossing. I do not know why they failed to catch the signal."

Representatives of the Indiana Railroad commission were expected on the scene early today to start the states investigation. An official statement issued from the office of the chief dispatcher of the Michigan Central at Chicago also declared the Michigan Central engine crew apparently failed to observe that the crossing signal was set against them.

With the coming of daylight, officials in charge of the wrecking crew expected to be able to clear away the wreckage sufficiently to enable trains to operate on both tracks and to remove the last of the bodies still held down by timbers. Persons of at least six persons were visible beneath the New York Central cars, members of wrecking crew declared.

Because of the darkness the shock of the crash and the fact that efforts of volunteers, many of whom were at first given out by the lack of food and the fact that they were found not to have been aboard.

"LET OTHERS CHIRP" IS FIREMAN'S COMMENT

Michigan City, Ind., Feb. 28.—"The other fellows can chirp all they want; we have our own story to tell yet," said George Block, fireman of the Michigan Central train wrecked at Porter, Indiana last night. Block and Wm. Long, his engineer, were here under guard of Michigan Central officials until this afternoon.

Long would not talk or even indicate that he had heard questions asked him concerning the wreck.

Long and Block were found on the station platform here awaiting a special train which took them and Michigan Central officials to Niles, Michigan, where an official railroad inquiry was to be held later today. At dinner on board the special, Block said they had been warned by railroad officials not to make any statement in advance of the hearing.

CHURCH TRAINS CLASS IN PRACTICE NURSING

An unusual service was conducted Sunday evening at the Methodist church in Newark, N. J. The leader declared that nothing like it had occurred in the church, so far as he knew since its organization some 30 years ago.

It was the occasion of concluding the Practical Nursing Class begun last July in the church, and the presentation of Certificates to the eight who passed the examinations. The class instructor, who made the presentation said: "The S. D. Adventist people have encouraged the profession of nursing as a powerful missionary agency since their organization nearly a century ago. Many settlements have been conducted in various parts of the world and thousands of acres have been drained in these institutions. This people have organized and conducted two medical schools, one now being in a flourishing condition, and are now in operation. That until recently the idea of instructing worthy Christian women in the principles and a few of the details of bedside nursing for neighborhood usefulness in times of sickness had not occurred as yet. This work was launched in another state about two years ago. The Ohio conference has been encouraging the work for about one year. The Newark church began last summer a class of ten which will but the first of two now stands here to receive their certificates."

The presentation was made by medical officials of both state and union conferences.

The leader stated that at least one-half of the class is now engaged in the profession of nursing for physicians and we are at the Sanatorium on dates. He said that there is a growing demand for another class to be started and that there had been applications from outside people. If the interest is large enough a second class will likely be launched in the near future. There is no intention of flooding the town with half trained nurses, he said but there is a need that every mother should be taught how to care for her own family in their simple ailments and to extend her ministrations to her neighbors. Those who show an aptness for nursing are encouraged to keep up their studies until able to act in the capacity of practical nurses.

SAVE THE PIG.

Farrowing time for a large per cent of the Ohio spring pig crop is at most here. Unless some simple precautions are observed, there will be considerable loss at farrowing time or shortly following.

A week or ten day before farrowing, the sow should be removed from the rest of the herd and placed in the pen where she is expected to farrow so that she may become accustomed to her new home before farrowing. The pen should be provided with guard rails along the sides about six inches from the floor and seven or eight inches wide to prevent the sow from crowding the pigs into a corner or along the sides of the pen and crushing them as she lies down. Do not have too much bedding in the pen as that interferes with the activity of the pigs and increases the liability of them being trampled or lain on. However, a small amount of clean, dry bedding is essential.

Unless the weather is extremely cold or abnormal conditions prevail at farrowing time, the pigs will need little or no attention, but it is well to watch at that time to rendered assistance if necessary.

For 12 hours previous and about 15 hours after farrowing the sow should have little or no feed except water from which the chills have been removed. Then several days should be taken to get the sow back on full feed. Overfeeding around farrowing time is very likely to result in milk fever in the sow orours in the pigs either one of which is likely to prove fatal.

Be sure that the sow and pigs get plenty of exercise as well as good wholesome food. A chance to get out into the sunlight will aid materially in keeping the pigs healthy.

Avoid the necessity of shaving soap for the family wash by dissolving it in advance.
